Policy and Society

An Interdisciplinary Journal of Policy Research

Policy and Society is an interdisciplinary journal exploring policy and its manifestations in broader political, economic and social contexts. Each issue of Policy and Society is devoted to a single policy theme. The theme may be approached from the perspective of single or multiple disciplines.

Policy and Society seeks to explore how policies are shaped by their context and, in turn, shape it. The Journal welcomes submissions that deal with policy theory and practice at the local, national and/or international level, including review of the state of the field. An issue consists of an introductory review article followed by 5 to 7 articles (approximately 6,000 to 8,000 words per article). Each issue is overseen by a special guest editor.

Why Publish with Policy and Society?

- Provides a high quality and convenient publication outlet for conference proceedings, workshops and thematically focused research work.
- Publishes only high quality, peer reviewed original research. All manuscripts are double blind refereed.
- Themed issues published without cost to editors, authors or professional societies.
- Included in a large number of relevant indexing services, including Scopus (www.scopus.com/scopus/home.url), the largest abstract and citation database of research literature and quality web sources in the world.
- Distributed globally through Elsevier's reliable and innovative electronic platform ScienceDirect (www.sciencedirect.com), the largest online journal service in the world.

Policy & Society welcomes proposals for theme issues from prospective Special Guest Editors. Proposals and inquiries can be sent directly to the Journal Co-editors. For more information and details on how to submit a proposal see:
